

David O'Brien

David is an experienced and highly successful primary headteacher and adviser who now runs his own management consultancy company and works with schools across the North West. David was described by Ofsted as a headteacher who provided 'inspiring leadership... unswerving vision and ambition to raise standards'. He was used regularly by the local authority to lead or present at conferences on issues including preparing for Ofsted and leadership and strategic planning.

In January 2011, David was a guest speaker on education for MPs in the House of Commons. David is very experienced in leading and planning day or residential conferences and presenting to national bodies and national conferences.

David's courses draw on his significant experience as headteacher, Ofsted and Religious Education inspector, performance management consultant and leading leader in education for the National College of School Leadership. Evaluations from his consultancy work make reference to vision, clarity of thinking, depth of knowledge and skilled mentoring.

- Consider their own school against the new Ofsted criteria;
- Move towards secure judgements about achievement, teaching, leadership and management, and, behaviour and safety;
